Dear LILI DONG

Application for a visitor visa for:

Applicant:
LILI DONG

Date of birth:
25 September 1982

Thank you for your application for a visitor visa. We received your application on 13 February 2014.

Our decision on your application

We have declined your application for a visitor visa because you do not meet the requirements set out in visitor visa immigration instructions.

We have made this decision because:

- We have carefully considered all the information you have provided in support of your application including your knowledge of intended travel, previous international travel records, your current employment and income status, financial background and etc. Based on the information currently on file, we are not satisfied that you have provided sufficient evidence to demonstrate that you are a bona fide applicant who genuinely intend a temporary stay for a lawful purpose in New Zealand at this stage.

We have considered whether the imposition of a bond or the granting of a limited visa would mitigate our concerns but we do not think that they would. We have also considered whether there are any special circumstances which would warrant an exception to immigration instructions but we can find no reason to grant a visa as an exception.

What are my options?

Detailed reasons for the decline decision on your application have been provided to you. If you choose to submit a new application, it is highly recommended that you provide sufficient information and supporting documents which adequately address the identified concerns which have been highlighted in this letter. It is important to note, that should you submit a new application without providing any new and compelling additional information and/or supporting documents, that the decision on any new application will likely remain unchanged.

You may choose to apply for a visitor visa at any time. A future application will require a new application which will be considered under the immigration instructions applicable at that time.

Immigration Act 2009

Immigration New Zealand (INZ) has changed the terminology it uses. From 29 November 2010, we will use the term visa to mean the authority to travel to New Zealand and stay in New Zealand. We have made this change because of the new Immigration Act 2009. If you applied for a permit before 29 November 2010, any correspondence sent by INZ will now refer to a visa. This change will not affect your immigration status.
